Enlarge cover. Sustainable energy provides a huge opportunity to make real progress on these new and closely linked agendas around the world. The 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development recognizes energy as a stand-alone goal, particularly SDG7, which aims to “ensure access to affordable, reliable, and sustainable modern energy for all”. Diversification of livelihoods, for example, is a key factor in building resilience to adverse events, including the impacts of climate change. Energy also allows access to knowledge and information technology that powers innovation and enables experimentation and testing of different adaptation options for better decision-making. SDG 14 Oceans and Seas “ Conserve and sustainably use the oceans, seas, and marine resources.
