Characteristics of Politics of Regionalism in India: The following are the salient characteristics of Politics of Regionalism in India: 1. A Product of Diversities: ADVERTISEMENTSÂ The Gorkhas of Darjeeling ask for Gorkhaland and Bodos of Assam demand Bodoland. 5. Fulfillment of Aspirations of Political OpportunitiesÂ Hence Regionalism is no longer considered an evil or a movement of economic retardation or social upheaval resulting in separation. Hence even the present UPA Prime Ministerâ€”Dr. Manmohan Singh in Press conference onâ€”the 3rd of September 2004 underlined his governmentâ€™s commitment to the creation of a separate state of Telangana. Gorkhaland Movement Coordination committee, GMCC, has tried creating momentum in the formation of Gorkhaland by holding several meeting but the results weren't in their favor. This massive agitation has led to colossal vandalization of public property including heritage railway stations, hydel power stations, Panchayat offices, etc. Response Eleven companies of paramilitary personnel, Army of Darjeeling, Sonada, and Kalimpong have taken the duty to subside this unimpeded madness resulting in havoc like situation. The strikes create a hurdle in delivering essential supplies to the needy, a
