This is the first full account of World War I in Palestine since the official history published in the 1920s. It was a tough and fast-moving campaign, fought against a formidable enemy in harsh terrain and sometimes stupefying heat. Its highpoints - T.E. Lawrence's capture of Aqaba with a charge of Arab horsemen, and Allenby's victory march through the walled city of Jerusalem with fighters overhead and volleys of machine-gun fire in the streets - are classic moments in the history of warfare, but there is more that is equally gripping; the battles of Gaza were among the most hard-fought, and the battle of Megiddo among the most brilliant and decisive victories of the entire war. Hostilities began with the defence of the Suez Canal, Britain's jugular, against the Ottoman Turks and their German allies. The Allies thrust into Palestine when Allenby took over from the less aggressive Murray, and Lawrence harnessing the irregular forces of Arab nationalism, were much needed victories. In contrast to the failures at Gallipoli and in Mesopotamia, or the...

Sinai and Palestine Campaign – The Sinai and Palestine Campaign during the Middle Eastern Theatre of World War I was a series of battles which took place on the Sinai Peninsula, Palestine, and Syria between January 28, 1915 and October 28, 1918. British, Australian, and New Zealand forces fought the campaign. – Wikipedia. Military history of Australia during World War I – Wikipedia. The final battle of the Palestine campaign in September 1918 resulted in arguably the most decisive British victory of the war – and one of the most decisive in the history of modern warfare. Major-General Edward Chaytor. The Egyptian Expeditionary Force (EEF) prepared for months to launch an offensive against the Ottoman Eighth and Seventh field armies in northern Palestine and the Jordan Valley. – Much effort went into convincing the Ottoman generals that the impending British offensive was aimed against the Ottoman line in the Trans-Jordan. The New Zealand Mounted Rifles Brigade, which together with the rest of the Anzac Mounted Division remained in the Jordan Valley, took part in various ruses to give the impression that the entire Desert Mounted Corps was still in the valley.
